A goal consists of a 10 foot × 20 foot goal with a net to catch the ball. For each goal scored, one point is awarded to the team. The team that scores the most goals is the winner. The game is fast-paced because it is often played on a field with a natural field goal. The field is 120 yards long and there are two goals set on either end. The field is covered with a natural grass turf. The players wear a shirt and a helmet. The helmet covers the top of the player's head, with goggles covering the face and a faceguard covering the chin. The player's arms are covered by a biceps protector to protect the player's forearms. The upper body is protected with pads, which are pads in a protective shell. The player's feet are protected with cleats, which are small, plastic spikes on the bottom of the shoe that dig into the ground. The player's knees are protected by a mesh cup and a thigh pad. The lacrosse goal is a wooden box with an opening in the front. The net is a heavy horizontal rope-like material suspended from the ceiling of the goal box. The rope can be attached to the bottom of a post, which is in the middle of the goal box. The rope is attached to a foot hole in the base of the box, which is about 2 feet below the net. The rope is pulled up by two people, one on each side of the rope. When a player on the lacrosse team sends the ball towards the goal, a defender tries to get the ball, and the goal, with his/her stick. The stick is a long stick with a curved blade and a hook on the end of the blade. The hook is designed to catch the ball and prevent the player from getting the ball, since the player can put more force on the ball than the stick can. The stick is curved, 2d92ce491b
