Category: Video softwareJan. 12 (Bloomberg) -- Five years after the financial crisis, Bank of America Corp. is putting $30 billion into a new U.S. government agency that could be its last chance to buy bad mortgage-backed securities. BofA, the largest U.S. bank by assets, joins a group of large banks, including Goldman Sachs Group Inc. and Bank of New York Mellon Corp., that also are funneling capital into the Stabilization Finance Corp., as the government tries to revive lagging housing markets. Bank of America may use money from the new agency to offer $1.5 billion to purchase the second lien loans on nearly a half million homes in Dallas and Fort Worth, Texas, that are owned by lender Countrywide Financial Corp. The bank may pay less for the goods than its competitors, which could increase the value of its portfolio, said a person familiar with the matter. The U.S. government created the Stabilization Finance Corp. in 2008 to buy the toxic assets from banks, following concerns they would worsen the mortgage crisis. Since then, the purchases have helped stabilize the financial system. Banks have been buying more of these securities and cutting their holdings in recent months as the U.S. housing market started recovering. JPMorgan Chase & Co., the biggest U.S. bank by assets, said last week it bought $5.4 billion of these securities. The use of the agency to raise capital comes as BofA is also raising its dividend for shareholders for the first time in more than four years. It also announced an $8.5 billion share repurchase program. Bank Stabilization "The board believes that the bank is in a position to make the best use of our capital going forward," Bob Diamond, BofA's chairman and chief executive officer, said 2d92ce491b
