1. Field of the Invention
The present invention relates to a printed-circuit board having a base material and a conductive pattern formed thereon and, more particularly, to a printed-circuit board having a through hole formed therein, which is suitable for the mounting of a chip thereon.

2. Description of the Related Art
A printed-circuit board having a through hole formed therein, and a method of manufacturing the printed-circuit board, have been already proposed in the art. For example, Japanese Patent Application Laid-Open No. 6-101501 discloses a technique for manufacturing a printed-circuit board having an integrated circuit chip mounted thereon by insert-molding an insulation film such as a polyimide film into a through hole formed in a base material such as a glass epoxy substrate. Further, Japanese Patent Application Laid-Open No. 7-190324 discloses a technique for manufacturing a printed-circuit board having an integrated circuit chip mounted thereon by insert-molding an insulation film such as a polyimide film into a through hole formed in a base material. However, there is a problem with the printed-circuit board disclosed in Japanese Patent Application Laid-Open No. 6-101501 and Japanese Patent Application Laid-Open No. 7-190324, in that, since the integrated circuit chip is mounted through the insert-molded insulation film, there is a tendency to cause the distortion or waviness of the surface of the insulation film due to the volume contraction caused upon cooling of the insulation film after the insert molding thereof, so that the problem arises in that the flatness of the surface of the printed-circuit board is reduced. Accordingly, an object of the present invention is to provide a printed-circuit
