Among these cases, recurrence at the M/T1 site had been found in 4 cases and was thought to be associated with the proximity of the M/T1 site to the prosthesis wall. In the present study, no significant differences in the incidence and recurrence rate were observed between patients with or without suture anchor placement. These findings are similar to those of a previous study showing no significant differences in the incidence and recurrence rate of prosthetic joint infection between patients with and without suture anchors.^[[@R15]\]^ As a novel alternative for internal fixation, suture anchors have a weak impact on the M/T1 thickness. Therefore, we believe that suture anchors should not necessarily be incorporated into the 82138339de
