The sensor returns data in a format that is not compatible with the existing Perl temperature modules. The values are returned in degrees, with degrees = 0.55555555 (0x55555555). The module is written by Steve Mynott. This module allows many data-sets to be added in a simple configuration file, which can then be used to determine which data-set is best for a particular situation. For more information, see the Digi::Celcius online documentation, which contains extensive usage examples. The online documentation also includes some advanced usage examples that can be used for further extension. Q: Have both the word frequency and term frequency calculation Is it possible to have both the word frequency and term frequency calculation in python. For example, if I have a list of string that is ['word1','word2','word3','word4','word5','word6','word7','word8','word9','word10'] And I want to calculate the term frequency of each word with value '1', the output should be: `term_freq['word1'] = 3`
`term_freq['word2'] = 1` `term_freq['word3'] = 2` `term_freq['word4'] = 2` `term_freq['word5'] = 1`
`term_freq['word6'] = 1` `term_freq['word7'] = 1` `term_freq['word8'] = 1` `term_freq['word9'] = 1`
`term_freq['word10'] = 1` Also I have the word frequency calculation of each word, with value '1', the output should be: `word_freq['word1'] = 3` `word_freq['word2'] = 3` `word_freq['word3'] = 3`
`word_freq['word4'] = 3` `word_freq['word5'] = 3` `word_freq['word6'] = 3` `word_freq['word7'] = 3`
`word_freq['word8'] = 3` `word_freq['word9'] = 3` `word_freq['word10'] = 3` It means both the word frequency and term frequency can be calculated for the same list of strings. Any help will be appreciated!
