Improved stability and enhanced activity in immobilized Aeromonas sp. lipid transfer protein. The stabilization effect of various immobilization matrices was investigated for Aeromonas lipid transfer protein (LTP). Protein stability was increased 4-fold with alpha-chitin as compared to alpha-alginate and chitosan. The binding of LTP to these matrices was mainly electrostatic in nature. Protein-immobilized matrices (the amount of protein immobilized was over 90% in the case of alpha-chitin) were employed in the synthesis of phospholipid vesicles (liposomes) for lipoprotein LTP activity. Liposome synthesis was unaffected by the presence of free protein up to 10 microg and the amount of bound protein was enough to produce liposomes. Vesicles containing bound LTP also showed greater activity than free LTP in protein digestion. Immobilization with alpha-chitin was found to be the best. [Multifocal cutaneous amelanotic melanoma]. Multifocal cutaneous melanomas are scarcely seen among cases of cutaneous melanoma. We describe the case of a 45-year-old man with multiple cutaneous amelanotic melanomas who was referred to our unit with a 2-year history of skin lesions.

Dermatopathology examination revealed anaplastic amelanotic melanoma cells without apparent continuity. The patient was treated with adenocarcinoma with liver metastases, followed by right and left parotidectomy. The report by ELOA, the Hellenic Council for Social Development (KEP), and the Organization of National Migration (OMA) claims that the total number of illegal immigrants, especially the so-called students, is between 15,000 and 18,000. According to the report, they come mostly from Albania, Morocco, Romania, Syria, and Algeria, among other countries. The students are, however, from a wide spectrum of countries, including India, Pakistan, Russia, Vietnam, China, and the Philippines. The report concludes that many more illegal immigrants are admitted to Greek universities than what is currently reported by the police. The report further claims that the police has no reliable data on illegal immigrants because they don't collect any information on them. The police, however, says that the problem can't be solved if there is no data on them. "The problem can't be solved with the current [police] tools. We need a data collection and analysis system," Konstantinos Ares, a police officer, told the news agency ANA. This year, the KEP, ELOA, and OMA have also carried out a similar study, but with a wider scope. In its report, the organization states that around 3,000 illegal immigrants work as day laborers in the business of construction or leisure, and another 7,000 more work illegally as cooks or construction workers. No rapid decline in the number of people using public transport in the city centre, with bus ridership higher than a decade ago and tram numbers at a record high. The Year In Transport statistics are compiled from various sources, including the New Zealand Transport Agency
