Robotic assisted Heller's myotomy is a safe and effective alternative to conventional laparoscopic Heller's myotomy. The objective of this study is to demonstrate the safety and efficacy of robotic-assisted Heller's myotomy in children, regardless of weight. METHODS: Nine children (8 to 15 years) with hiatal hernia were admitted for traditional laparoscopic Heller's myotomy, and underwent robotic-assisted myotomy. The procedure used six robotic arms and one motion-controlled laparoscopic system. A five-port technique was used. A 3 cm infra-median umbilical incision was made, and the first two ports were at the epigastric and left-hypochondrial regions, and two more at the right hypochondriac and anterior supra-umbilical regions. A second umbilical skin incision was made for the camera port and the sixth port. Patients were discharged on the day after the procedure. A follow-up esophago-gastroscopy at the end of six months was performed. The short-term success rate was 90.9% with a total of two conversions to open surgery. The average operative time was 170 minutes. There were no significant complications. At the follow-up six months post procedure, no significant strictures were noted. The cosmetic outcome was excellent. Robotic-assisted Heller's myotomy is a safe and effective procedure in children, regardless of weight.
